Academic dishonesty

In the academic community, the high value placed on truth implies a corresponding intolerance of scholastic dishonesty. In cases involving academic dishonesty, determination of the grade and of the student's status in the course is left primarily to the discretion of the faculty member. In such cases, where the instructor determines that a student has demonstrated academic dishonesty, the student may receive a failing grade for the assignment and/or exam and may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website. If you are concerned, show your essay to someone else before you turn it in to look the essay over with fresh eyes. Also, be sure to view your Turnitin results after submitting to Canvas.

Here is my official three-strike policy:

- Strike One: Regardless of your intent to plagiarize or not, you will rectify the problem within one week of the original assignment due date. You will receive a grade of no greater than 80% on the Final Draft.
- Strike Two: You will rewrite the entire paper within one week of the original assignment due date. You will use no materials from the original paper. You will start over from scratch. You will receive no greater than an 80% on the Final Draft of the paper.
- Strike Three: I will seek to drop you from my course.

Disruptive behavior

Student behavior or speech that disrupts the instructional setting will not be tolerated. Disruptive conduct may include, but is not limited to: unwarranted interruptions; failure to adhere to instructor's directions; vulgar or obscene language; slurs or other forms of intimidation; and physically or verbally abusive behavior. In such cases where the instructor determines that a student has disrupted the educational process, a disruptive student may be temporarily removed from class. In addition, the student may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Policies for this Class

Class participation and Attendance policy

Participation in class discussions and activities:

An English class relies on genuine, active, lively participation from students. Full participation means doing the course readings, annotating them, doing homework, and coming to class prepared to engage in conversation. If everyone has done the reading and done their homework, everyone will be ready to discuss their views based on the same information. For more details about homework, please see our Canvas course for due dates and assignment descriptions.

Attendance and timeliness:

Regular, on-time attendance in any college class is extremely important for student success. For that reason, please know that I would like you to be in class and to show up on time every day. If you have more than four unexcused absences before week 10 of the semester, or over the course of the entire semester, I have the right to drop you from the class. I will warn you at your third absence, but not after. Excused absences require written medical, legal, or athletic documentation.

An instructor can penalize students for chronic or excessive tardiness, and I reserve the right to mark you as partially absent if you are habitually late to class:

- On time means arriving when class starts.
- Late/Tardy means arriving more than 20 minutes after class begins. Being marked as Late/Tardy in Canvas earns you 80% of credit.
- Absent means not showing up, or showing up more than 45 minutes after class begins.

All work is due on the date specified on the syllabus or assignment sheet.

In the event that you do miss class, you are responsible for checking Canvas, your syllabus, and with a classmate to determine what concepts, issues and material we discussed during your absence. Please note that a significant proportion of the course content will only be available in class lectures, presentations and discussions, and that your knowledge of this material will be assessed throughout the semester.

Communication Guidelines

I answer e-mails from 9am to 5pm Monday – Friday. While you shouldn't expect an immediate response from me (or anyone!), I usually get back to students within 24 hours. I do not answer e-mails on Saturday or Sunday, so if you e-mail on Saturday do not expect a response until Monday.

I do not answer e-mails which ask such questions as “What is X assignment?” “When is X due?” or “What did I miss in class?” as the answers to questions about assignments can be found on our Canvas page, and the answer to “What did I miss in class?” is always: Everything. You missed the whole class. I also advise that you include a descriptive subject line to your email.

If you want to know what you missed, come talk to me in my office hours or talk to a classmate. Do not ask me to recount class over an e-mail.

Policies - additional

Extra Credit

I allow students one week from a Final Draft due date to revise essays of less than a “B” after they have been graded, and I will adjust the grade based upon specific changes that reflect consideration of my comments or any other key writing, research, or argument elements.

Course Drop Policies

I reserve the right to drop students from our class who are not giving what I perceive as good faith effort. Here are the reasons you could be dropped from my course:

- Failing to turn in two consecutive assignments on Canvas.
- Being absent five times before week 10 of the semester.
- Being rude or abusive to classmates, myself, or other staff/faculty members in the classroom or during office hours.
- Using a vape pen/e-cig, chewing tobacco in class, or coming to class obviously inebriated.

Please note that I will review all apparent cases of academic dishonesty with the student and, if necessary, the appropriate administrative officials.

Using another person's written work or ideas without proper attribution will result in a failing grade on the assignment and, possibly, an F in the course and academic probation.

Gender-Inclusive Language in the Classroom

College of the Redwoods aspires to create a learning environment in which all people feel comfortable in contributing their perspectives to classroom discussions. It therefore encourages instructors and students to use language that is gender-inclusive and non-sexist to affirm and respect how people describe, express, and experience their gender. Just as sexist language excludes women's experiences, non-gender-inclusive language excludes the experiences of individuals whose identities may not fit the gender binary, and/or who may not identify with the sex they were assigned at birth.

Gender-inclusive/non-sexist language acknowledges people of any gender (for example, first year student versus freshman, humankind versus mankind, etc.), affirms non-binary gender identifications, and recognizes the difference between biological sex and gender expression.

Students have the ability to have an alternate first name and pronouns to appear in Canvas. Contact Admissions & Records to request a change to your preferred first name and pronoun. Your Preferred Name will only be listed in Canvas. It does not change your legal name in our records. See the Student Information Update form.
